

Tide Water Canal. The accomplishment of such a project could not fail to bring into operation industrial means, that in the present state of things will probably never be improved. Besides furnishing to the farmer resources that would enable him greatly to increase the produce of his lands, and to the other branches of industry, facilities that would lead to the extension of their operations; it would open a vast number of new sites upon which, with the advantage of a large amount of unfailing water-power, manufactories of various kinds would, before long, be located.—The result would lead to incalculable advantages to the county, and the State would derive its benefits from the introduction within its limits of a large amount of manufacturing capital, as well as the extension of means by which to animate the industry of its inhabitants.”

We would further beg leave to say, that the bill does not propose any demand upon the treasury or the credit of the State, and is so restricted as to reserve to the legislature the right to alter or repeal it at pleasure.

By order,

John Nick. Watkins, Cl’k.

On motion of Mr. Tuck,

Ordered, That the committee on internal improvement enquire into the expediency of providing by law, that the several internal improvement companies, in which the State may be interested, shall make their annual report to the Governor, on or before the 15th December in each year.

On motion of Mr. Giles,

The house took up for consideration the bill, entitled, an act for the better government of the banks of Baltimore city;

On motion of Mr. Giles,

Said bill was recommitted to the select committee from which it originated.

On motion of Mr. Spencer,

The house took up for consideration the special order of the day, being the bill to regulate the banking institutions of this State.

Mr. Mason moved to suspend the further consideration of the same until to-morrow.

Mr. Hammond moved to amend said motion by striking out “until to-morrow” and inserting “until the day after to-morrow.”

On the question being put, will the house agree to the amendment?

Determined in the negative.

The question then recurred on the motion of Mr. Mason, and on the same being put, it was Determined in the affirmative.

Mr. Bowie submitted the following order:
